Anya Warner

Consultant Serving ENTERPRISE ARCHITECTURE PROFESSIONALS

Anya is a consultant serving Enterprise Architecture (EA) Professionals by providing research-based consulting services to address critical technology management issues.

PREVIOUS WORK EXPERIENCE

Prior to joining Forrester, Anya was a project manager at Forbes Consulting Group, where she managed complex qualitative research projects for CPG, financial services, and pharmaceutical companies. As the project lead, Anya's responsibilities included managing project logistics, overseeing participant recruitment, liaising with clients and external research associates, and supporting the delivery of actionable insights.

Before joining Forbes, Anya spent several years as a senior research analyst at Mintel International Group in London, where she managed both qualitative and quantitative research projects for a wide range of companies. Anya was involved in all aspects of the project life cycle, from initial scoping through to results presentation, and she served as the primary liaison between internal and external project teams, coordinating research efforts and ensuring the successful execution of project requirements.

EDUCATION

Anya graduated from Fairfield University with a B.A. in English.